OBJECTIVES

This course is designed as both a didactic and pragmatic symposium on mammography and other breast imaging modalities. The overall goal of the program is to assist participants in maintaining their certification in breast imaging. The ACR requires 15 credit hours every three years

As a result of attending this symposium, participants should be able to:

- Detect, efficiently evaluate and confidently determine management options for breast masses
- Describe and characterize breast calcifications by morphology and distribution to determine appropriate management.
- Define the probably benign concept and apply it appropriately.
- Discuss the technique of DBT guided biopsy and describe its appropriate usage in the evaluation of tomosynthesis detected lesions
- Identify normal and abnormal male breast imaging findings on mammography and ultrasound
- Describe parenchymal asymmetries with methods for detection, efficient evaluation and appropriate management options
- Describe recent innovations in image guided preoperative breast lesion localization
- Recognize the clinical and imaging presentations of ductal carcinoma in situ and the corresponding histology
- Identify new and emerging techniques to detect breast cancer with a focus on understanding contrast enhancement mammography.
- Develop and implement logical approaches to problem solving along with appropriate techniques for a variety of common problems in breast imaging
- Discuss breast imaging audit definitions, statistical analysis and appropriate benchmarks for radiologists.
- Assess patients presenting with nipple discharge and establish appropriate evaluation strategies.
- Discuss the importance of Quality Assurance and what is required under MQSA
- Recognize that LVI can have a macroscopic appearance on imaging that can look like textbook DCIS
- Review ACC Breast Center data on pediatric breast intervention vs. surgical excision cases, including morphology of lesions with pathology to formulate a reasonable algorithm for management of breast masses in children
- Identify a new method by which to find a lesion on ultrasound using an x,y coordinate system based on mammography
- Describe potential complications of breast procedure and how to avoid or mitigate those complications
- Recognize and consider appropriate management options for unusual inflammatory, vascular, stromal (fibromatosis, granular cell tumors) and metastatic lesions in the breast
- Illustrate technical and diagnostic issues of breast Ultrasound
- Recognize and minimize some of the common causes for the missed diagnosis of breast cancer.
